Overview of the CHRP Competency Framework

About the CHRP

The Certified Human Resources Professional (CHRP) recognizes achievement and capability. The designation signifies that an individual has achieved and continues to actively demonstrate knowledge and skills within the field of human resources. Through an examination and assessment process, each candidate for certification must demonstrate the core competencies relevant to the HR profession.

There is high demand for qualified professionals in all disciplines today. As companies compete for organizational success in an ever-changing environment, they are looking to human resources to help them effectively manage talent.

The designation assures employers, clients and other HR professionals that a CHRP has committed to abiding by a professional code of ethics.

Once an individual obtains the CHRP designation, there is an ongoing requirement to maintain one's competency. This is demonstrated through compliance with the standards set for continuing professional development. Salary surveys show that Certified Human Resources Professionals receive higher remuneration than their counterparts without the CHRP (Ref: HRIA 2012; HRPA-Payscale 2013).

Application of the Competency Framework

The CHRP Competency Framework outlines 44 discipline specific professional competencies that candidates for certification must demonstrate in order to be certified. Competencies are written as statements that define the work of a Certified Human Resources Professional, so that the Provincial Human Resources Associations can assess whether candidates have met the standard expected by employers and the public. The competencies are kept up to date through a national professional practice analysis.

The CHRP Competency Framework specifies the proficiency level at which each competency is to be demonstrated and how it will be assessed. The competencies and proficiency levels represent the minimum requirement to meet CHRP certification.

The CHRP Competency Framework is the foundation on which the CHRP designation rests. It is used by:

- Employers and the public to better understand the value of CHRPs
- The academic community in the design and development of course curriculum and profession specific programs
- CHRP holders to validate their skills and abilities and articulate their value as a CHRP
- CHRP holders and Member Associations for continuing professional development (CPD) requirements
- Future CHRPs to help them understand the knowledge, skills, and abilities required to become a CHRP

Path to Obtain the CHRP

The CHRP education, examination, and experience requirements are designed to provide candidates opportunities to develop and demonstrate the required CHRP competencies.

The path to become a Certified Human Resources Professional involves:

- Meet the requirements for membership in their local provincial HR Association
- Pass the National Knowledge Exam demonstrating theoretical knowledge
- Completion of a minimum of a Bachelor's Degree in any discipline demonstrating (add info on what degree provides, professional, etc.)
- Demonstrate skill and experience through a minimum of three years work experience at the professional level in Human Resources
- Commit to adhere to the CHRP Code of Ethics

Maintaining the CHRP

Once an individual obtains the CHRP designation, there is an ongoing requirement to maintain one's competency. This is demonstrated through compliance with the standards set for continuing professional development.

Continuing Professional Development (CPD) involves the reporting of development activities that aid one in advancing and expanding their professional knowledge and practice in the competency areas. CHRPs are required to report their Continuing Professional Development activities on a three-year cycle.

Overview of the Functional Knowledge Areas

Functional competencies are those specific to the discipline of human resources. The functional competencies are grouped by discipline or knowledge area. The nine functional knowledge areas are:

- Strategy
- Professional Practice
- Engagement
- Workforce Planning and Talent Management
- Labour and Employment Relations
- Total Rewards
- Learning and Development
- Health, Wellness, and Safe Workplace
- Human Resources Metrics, Reporting, and Financial Management

For a complete list of functional competencies within each knowledge area, refer to Appendix A – HR Competencies by Functional Area.

Enabling Competencies

In addition to the knowledge and skills competencies within the functional knowledge areas, a range of enabling competencies are also needed to complete the successful professional's skill set.

The enabling competencies for Certified Human Resources Professionals are:

- Strategic and Systems Thinking
- Professional and Ethical Practice
- Critical Problem-Solving and Analytical Decision Making
- Change Management and Cultural Transformation
- Communication, Conflict Resolution, and Relationship Management

Proficiency Levels & Assessments

Proficiency levels describe the level of knowledge or skill required by an individual to become certified. The levels of proficiency for the CHRP Framework are defined as follows:

Awareness – the ability to explain, describe and demonstrate knowledge.

Comprehension – building on awareness, comprehension demonstrates an understanding of the process to apply knowledge to perform the competency.

Proficiency – building on awareness and comprehension, proficiency demonstrates the ability to draw upon prior experience to perform the competency by planning, interpreting, analyzing, and tailoring to their environment.

For each functional competency, the proficiency level at which it is to be demonstrated is specified. In addition, the proficiency levels determine the method of assessment for each functional competency.

For the list of proficiency level and assessment method for each functional competency, refer to Appendix A – HR Competencies by Functional Area.

Education Requirement

Candidates for certification must confirm that they have completed a minimum of a Bachelor's Level Degree in any discipline. A degree provides the basis for enabling competencies that allow individuals to effectively apply functional knowledge by using critical thinking and analytical processes in a wide variety of situations. The completion of a degree also enables one to develop a general knowledge and understanding of many key concepts, methodologies, theoretical approaches and assumptions in one or more disciplines; the ability to gather, review, evaluate and interpret information relevant to specific topics; the ability to use a range of established techniques to identify problems, critically analyze information, evaluate alternatives and propose solutions; the ability to communicate the results of their work accurately and reliably; and the commitment to take personal accountability for decision-making.

National Knowledge Exam

The National Knowledge Exam® (NKE) serves as the national benchmark for the assessment of proficiency in the human resources body of knowledge. The exam assesses an individual's understanding of the CHRP competencies as they relate to academic knowledge. Academic knowledge refers to basic facts, policies, practices, methods, legislation, etc. It is information that can be written into procedures and transferred fairly accurately during the learning process. The NKE questions are based on the competencies within the nine functional knowledge areas.

Professional Experience Requirement

The CHRP Experience Requirement is a formal step in earning one's CHRP designation requiring candidates to demonstrate three or more years of professional experience in human resources. Through the experience requirement, candidates for certification demonstrate their ability to apply the knowledge and skills gained from their formal education and experience to a workplace environment. A broad range of experience must be demonstrated in a minimum of two of the functional knowledge areas.
